Trumpeter/Singer/Songwriter Sue Richardson's brand new album "Fanfare" is released on Splash Point Records.

Fanfare is jazz trumpeter/singer Sue Richardson's third CD, and represents an exciting new departure for her. The ideas behind Fanfare were to bring together many of the different styles present in jazz into one sparkling album, and to showcase each member of the band with a number written specially for them.

The result is 14 original songs, which take the listener from samba to blues, swing to rock and New Orleans to modern jazz. Fanfare is an eclectic mix of instrumentals and vocal arrangements, with superb solos and sensitive interpretations.

2010 was an amazing year for Sue Richardson. She was a special guest at the Humphrey Lyttelton Memorial gig at the Hammersmith Apollo, playing with the Humph Band alongside Charlie Watts and Jools Holland; she sang and played live on BBC Radio 4's Woman's Hour; did a sold-out Jazz Service's Spring Tour and was interviewed on JazzFM.

She also appeared live on international TV in Paris, for France 24's Culture Show, during which they played a video clip and a snippet from one of the songs on Fanfare.

Sue talking on The Culture Show, May 2010:

"You've been working for the past year or so on your 3rd album. Are you taking a new direction? What can fans expect?"

"It's called Fanfare and it's basically a fanfare of jazz so I'm trying to take lots of different genres of jazz and use those to influence my writing, which I've done over the last year or so. But I've written in a different way. I've had a baby since my last album and I don't have the time to write in the same way that I did which was locking myself in the studio with a piano. So a lot of it has been thought out in my head and then worked out onto paper quickly and developed in rehearsals."
